

FAQs on direct entry at Dräger

Which fields of study does Dräger seek graduates from?

Of course, development, engineering and production account for a large part of Dräger success. Therefore, we are primarily looking for engineers, business administration specialists or computer experts. But what would these areas be without Product Management, Marketing, Sales, Quality Control, Controlling and Human Resources? Dräger offers many fascinating applications and development opportunities.

What do I need to bring to the position as a graduate for direct entry?

Most importantly: your passion. We also emphasize:

- Good academic performance and preferably knowledge of a foreign language
- Curiosity, courage and the candour to think unconventionally, exchange ideas and experience new ideas
- Flexibility to examine things from different perspectives, for example, from the point of view of the customer, user or colleague with a different cultural background
- View for the overall picture and the ability to communicate, which means: check ideas for their feasibility, advocate these ideas, convince colleagues of these ideas and achieve results together.